

Dear Andrew.

May I please ask you one further question?

Would you please provide an example of a residential street in Oxford where a rack of 22 cycle stands has been built?

We would like to know whether the Exeter/Ruskin proposal is setting a new precedent.

Kind regards

Dear Chris,

Thank you for your Email.

Thank you for providing details of the Historic situation, with respect to cycling, and the type of students that attended the former Ruskin College. I also note that, Historically, Ruskin College, had no formal provision for cycle parking.

The above information, is not however, considered a basis on which to conclude that there was no cycling, associated with the former Ruskin College; and therefore the potential increase in cycling, from this proposed use is likely to be low. It should also be noted that the Site has an existing permitted educational use, which would create cycle movements.

I am satisfied that the placement of cycle stands on-street and cycle access onto Worcester Place is acceptable.

I would note that the views you have expressed, as part of the Planning Consultation process, (which needs to be sent to planningcomments@oxford.gov.uk), regarding cycling, will be carefully considered by Oxford City Council, and there is no need for me to comment further on Highway matters.

Kind regards

Dear Andrew,

Following up on my email of July 31st please see attached some further feedback from the residents of Worcester Place. You should have seen this included within our letter dated August 26th.

Kind regards

Chris

The former Ruskin students were mostly mature and were lectured either on-site or in Headington. The Planning Application form states that Exeter are planning to have 77 cycle stands, of which 27 would be situated on the highway of Worcester Place. These would be intended for students who will take lectures within the city centre. These facts contradict the Local Highway Authority statement that "....the potential increase in cycling, from this proposed use is likely to be low". We point out that this statement cannot be sustained given an increase from zero to 77. Nor are we aware of any precedent in the Jericho area where cycle stands are situated in a residential street. We propose that the cycle stands should be moved within the site and with access onto Walton Street instead.

Dear Andrew

Thank you for your message and for your explanation of the process to be followed. However I think we need to request that you revisit the facts you have been given.

Historically Ruskin College had no provision for cycles that we are aware of. Certainly none that involved any quantity of cycles emerging onto Worcester place regularly.

So in fact the potential increase in cycle traffic is very significant. There will be 50+ bikes within Exeter's proposed building, all emerging through a side gate onto Worcester place, plus the 24 additional ones (for which existing highway would need to be converted, at the request of Exeter because they have not allowed enough space within their site).

74 bicycles using Worcester Place would represent a very significant increase.

We have written to Audrey Mullender, the principal of Ruskin, and have requested confirmation of the historic position from her.

We think the only safe solution is for Exeter to revise their proposal to create access for cycles via the front of the building, facing Walton street, where there is an entrance that could be redesigned to accommodate all 74 cycles much more safely.

Dear Mr Johnson,

Thank you for your Email, the contents of which I note.

Your Email has been forwarded, to me, as I provided Highway Comments, on behalf of Oxfordshire County Council, for the planning application, at the former Ruskin College Site, Walton Street, Oxford (13/00832/FUL).

I would note, the following from my latest Highway Comments, dated 31st July 2013, which should be available on Oxford City Council's website, shortly.

The site has an existing education/student use (formerly Ruskin College), which would have created cycle movements; and as such, the potential increase in cycling, from this proposed use is likely to be low. I consider that an objection on this ground is unlikely to be sustained.

Notwithstanding, the above, I have considered and investigated the following suggestions:

- Firstly, a contra-flow cycle lane, on Worcester Place – This is likely to lead to the loss of on-street parking bays, which is likely to be unsatisfactory; and
- Secondly, a raised entry-treatment, at the junction of Worcester Place and Walton Street – This may be possible, and could reduce speeds of cyclists and vehicles, at this location, whilst also improving pedestrian priority.

It should be noted that the proposed Highway works, will need to be carried out under an agreement, with Oxfordshire County Council, as Local Highway Authority, and that the Local Highway Authority would seek to give consideration, to a raised entry-treatment, at the junction of Worcester Place and Walton Street, for potential inclusion in any finalised S278 Works.

Dear Ms Cairncross,

Thank you for getting in touch and for providing the shadowing diagrams. Of the twelve diagrams that you have provided I can see increased shadowing in six and some improvement in only one (the other five being mid-year or late afternoon).

Please see attached a new diagram that provides further evidence of our concerns about the height increase and the impact of the dormer windows on daylight.

I have not heard from Chris Pattinson but our concerns about the cycle racks remain. Worcester Place is used as a "main entrance into Jericho" from the city centre and it is always worrying for us to see cyclists heading towards oncoming one-way traffic along such a narrow street. Hence our objection to the proposed conversion of highway that would increase this danger.

We will of course welcome you to join one of our meetings.

With kind regards

Dear Mr and Mrs Johnson

I apologise for not getting back to you and your neighbours sooner with details of the way we believe that shadowing in Worcester Place will alter at various times of day on 21 March, 21 June and 21 December. I was on holiday when your email arrived, and trying to remain off-line as far as possible.

In response to your concerns about the size of the images in the report, I have now asked the consultants to extract them for you and they are attached for your reference.

As for the cycle stands, we are still exploring the possibility of moving them closer to Walton Street. However, I have asked Mr Pattison to call you to discuss your concerns further as there is still time to address any detailed points you want to raise.. I am sorry we have not been able to reach agreement, but once the planning process is concluded, I would like to come to a meeting of the South Jericho Residents Association to discuss how we can develop our relationship and ensure we become good neighbours.

With best wishes

Frances Cairncross

Dear Chris,

Unfortunately the 82 page document that you sent on July 3rd did not provide any satisfactory answers to our questions about daylight-sunlight impact to our houses. The diagrams were small and poor in quality.

Our significant concerns with your proposal remain and we are disappointed with the refusal to release the data files. Our independent daylight-sunlight analysis is underway but is handicapped by the lack of any detailed information about your proposal.

We remain concerned about the safety of the positioning of the cycle stands.

We will be requesting a speaking slot at the (expected) determination date of August 13th.

Finally we have constituted the South Jericho Residents Association to give our concerns a unified voice during the planning process that will be carried out over the next few weeks.

Dear Mr Johnson,

I am about to circulate the above document which I trust responds to all the issues raised by residents, but should you or anyone else not receive a copy, please let me know and we will arrange to send a version by a file download link or similar.

This document will be sent to the City Council this week, and we would of course be happy to discuss any specific queries with you.

Kind regards

Chris
